

GROCERY MART

Profiling Customer Segmentation

Segment characteristics and targeted marketing strategy recommendations across four core customer clusters.

01 Established Family Providers

02 Budget-Conscious Young Parents

03 Affluent DINK (Dual Income, No Kids)

04 Value-Driven Large Families

01

Established Family Providers

CUSTOMER SEGMENT PROFILE

Customer Profile

Definitely parents — family size of 2 to 5 members

Single parents are a subset of this group

Most have a teenager at home; relatively older on average

Mid-to-high income group

Marketing Strategy

GOAL

Focus on convenience and family value packs.

ACTION

- Offer multi-buy discounts on household staples and non-perishables (e.g. "Buy 2, Get 1 Free" on cereals, snacks, or cleaning supplies).
- Promote ready-made meals and meal kits sized for 3–5 people to save busy parents time.
- Pair traditional channels (flyers, newspaper inserts) with digital ads, and layer in occasional premium or convenience upsells rather than discount-only messaging.

02

Budget-Conscious Young Parents

CUSTOMER SEGMENT PROFILE

Marketing Strategy

GOAL

Focus on affordability, value, and converting browsing behavior into purchases.

ACTION

- Prioritize entry-level and store-brand baby and toddler essentials over premium organic lines.
- Deploy cart-abandonment offers, first-purchase discount codes, and deal-forward push notifications through the grocery app, since this group visits often but rarely converts.
- Use budget-friendly bundles such as diapers and wipes value packs.

Customer Profile

Majority are parents — family size capped at 3 members

Typically one child, and rarely a teenager

The youngest cluster on average

Lowest income and spend, with high web visits but low purchases, making them "browsers, not buyers"

03

Affluent DINK (Dual Income, No Kids)

Customer Profile

Definitely not parents — household capped at 2 members

A slight majority are couples over single people

Spans a wide age range

Highest income and spending, and the most campaign-responsive segment

Marketing Strategy

GOAL

Focus on premium, specialty, and gourmet items with a higher margin.

- Promote high-end cuts of meat, imported cheeses, fine wines, and specialty international foods.
- Emphasize quality and exclusivity over discounts — deal-driven messaging underperforms with this group.
- Create premium bundle kits (e.g. "Gourmet Pasta Night") and use elegant, magazine-style email newsletters to feature new, exclusive products.

04

Value-Driven Large Families

CUSTOMER SEGMENT PROFILE

Marketing Strategy

GOAL

Maximize savings and large-volume discounts to lift the lowest campaign engagement of any segment.

ACTION

- Prioritize store-brand and private-label products across all categories for better household value.
- Promote bulk-buying options and publicize weekly circular sales heavily.
- Since this group has the weakest campaign response, test low-cost re-engagement channels, including email, SMS, and a loyalty program with high-value points or immediate cash-off rewards before investing in pricier campaign formats.

Customer Profile

Definitely parents — family size of 2 to 5 members

The majority have a teenager at home

The oldest cluster on average

Below-average income (not the lowest), with the lowest campaign response rate of any segment
